That which follows is the minutes of the Hitchcock House Meeting conducted on Thursday, October 30th, 2014, beginning at 10:06pm and lasting twenty-two minutes therein. Resident Heads Steven and R n e forewarned Hitchcockizens of a night to be filled with games and gallantry in their humble abode, November 9th at eight in the evening. Said date is to be a partly cloudy Sunday. They also told of a pumpkin contest come and gone, wherein Section Four, exhibited a perfunctorily pathetic showing. Amid the remaining contestants, it was not Two, but rather the mighty mathematical half of Two, who reigned supreme. Upon Section One was bestowed a celebratory pumpkin, a poignant prize perhaps pointing to the singular nature of the victor. Segueing to report more important matters, the RHs amiably alerted Thanksgiving travelers of the Snitpotluck dinner their gullets will soon sorely miss. Through Google will R n e inquire attendance   la r pondez s'il vous pla t. The Resident Master's Assistant notified the house of a waiting list for November 11th athletic contest containing the Blackhawks and select guest sportspersons as opposition. Vice President Tahoe Schrader, amidst clamorous chatter, informed residents that opportunity to partake in the November 8th service day was very much still alive past the signup deadline. Brian Choo, Secretary, relayed his relative happiness with proceedings regarding the punctual postage of his minutes. Treasurer Sarah

Fulton made light of the fifty-five functional dollars floating in the house coffers. IM Sportspersons Jonathan Kowarski and Julian Manasse-boetani delineated Monday as the day of dodgeball and Wednesday as the day of kickball. Troy Ordoñez of the IHC had nothing to report, and report to house meeting HARC representative Stephen Skapek again failed, and again, cries for impeachment ensued. The Czar of Condoms observed an encouragingly quickly diminishing stash of condoms and promised replacements, soon to come. The beaming Bartlett Rep, Matthew Goldenberg, king of Mega Shabbat, announced an upcoming assembly of Aramark and its detractors, imploring citizens to fill out his feedback survey online. Thenceforth, Hall Council, through the mouth of Alex Ding, implored attendance at the Halloween Party, within which many man- and woman-hours of toil were tied. Subsequently, Kent Fernández of PSAC delivered his weekly “fun fact,” this week encouraging prospie hosts to not provide alcohol or drugs and instill an ethos of responsible alcohol and drug consumption in their precious prospies under the threat of a rescinded admission for the aforementioned prospie should they be whisked to the infirmary, with an admission rescinded. The pumpkin-winning section publicized their minutes in the shower. In a stark contrast to the preceding House Meeting, Section Two was at a loss for words. Section Three, staying true to its character, followed suit. The foodstuffs intended for consumption as procured by Section Four recieved heat, on account of said foodstuffs being navel oranges and Sriracha. Representative Thomas Wester of Section Five had only to ask for the House stay within a decibel range never clearly delineated in such a way as to positively influence Ted Lichtfield's slumbering being but a floor overhead. House Business wholly consisted of Fire Master Alex Morales asserting his dominance over the Roman fire pit for the Halloween bonanza. During General Announcements, Alexander Eichner reminded residents to attend the Saturday post-Halloween swing dance masquerade in Ida, as well as to procure tickets to University Theater workshops. With trick-or-treating at President Zimmer's door in mind, Alex Ding spread word of a Coalition for Equitable Policing Halloween undertaking. Hernando Fereira, spearheading the blood drive, pointed to one more group journey to the clinic to give lifeblood. Then, Kent made known a Wednesday OMSA dance at 7pm, complete with food. Tahoe Schrader prompted Hitchcockizens to submit House t-shirt ideas in time for a vote during the subsequent House Meeting. Additionally, hopping from his bookshelf throne, he strode across the room of green and modeled a rather fashionable hat of the maroon variety in order to generate interest, of which there was a substantial amount, in ordering a the armadillo-style cranial accessory for broader consumption. And it was then decided, amid raucous rambunctious rowdiness reminiscent of house meetings of yore, that the meeting be adjourned.
