2. Short Answer:

1. The House receives $150 per academic quarter. In an effort to extinguish these funds by the end of the academic year, Tom Wood offers per house dollar subsidizes based on the size of the remaining pool of funds. For the sake of simplicity, suppose that Tom contributes $2 per $1 if the treasury is less than $50, $1 per $1 if the treasury is less than $150, and $0.50 per $1 if the treasury is more than $150. Assuming that Jonathan Kowarski will break one fourth of a cue sticks per week, that no more mysterious T-Shirts appear, and that SCAV is coming, how many times will the House organize trips to see Gravity-caliber movies in the Winter Quarter?

2. Who would win in a fight, Sophie Holtzmann or Daniel Tracht. Support your claim with hyperbole.

3. Should Hitchcock install a flagpole outside the Green Room? Why or why not?

4. Is Nazi-Zombies a form of language? If yes, please answer in Nazi-Zombie.

3. List:

1. Please contrive extremely offensive, inane, and/or rude Scav Team Names. One of your answers must be "Booty Call of Cthulhu."

4. Essay:

Pick One:

Bartlett Table discussion reveals that there have been drastically less house-cestual relations this quarter than any in recent history. Upperclassmen blame the normalization of the university and the increased levels of out of house sociability in the new first years, whereas underclassmen cite increased focus in academics and lack of “the one”s in the house. Are these allegations true? Please give philosophical justification for your answer. If you answer in the affirmative, please provide rational for this change. If you answer in the negative, cite specific house-cest relationships.

Or,

On Thursday December 5th, Jonathan Kowarski said “CMAC is known for having great after parties!” Whatever does he mean?

5. Proof:
