

“Two Cows”

You have two cows. They show up at house meeting at 10:08, which is lucky because, along with eighteen people, that finally gives us a quorum and allows the meeting to begin.

1. Lottery: You have two cows. They forget about the housing lottery and have to find an apartment.
2. Film Fest: You have two cows. One writes and directs “American Cow-story X”, and the other stars in it. They present it at the film festival on Memorial Day.
3. Change your Mind: You have two cows that agree on everything. One of them listens to Danielle Alan on Thursday of fourth week and changes its mind. There is a falling-out among the cows.
4. Scav Auction: You have two cows. One of them shows up at Masters’ fourth week as a bidder at the Scav Auction. The other shows up at Masters’ fifth week as hamburger.
5. Service: You have two cows. They’re indecisive.
6. Social Chairs: You have two cows. They go to the planetarium on Friday at five o’clock. A pun on “Milky Way” is made.
7. IM Sports: You have two cows. You find they are not maneuverable enough to ride during ultimate Frisbee, nor do they swim well – ruling out water polo. You give your number to Rachel Berg for softball.
8. IHC: You have two cows. They move to Pierce.
9. IHC II: You have two cows. They chew cud together often and know each other’s habits very well. They win seventy-five dollars.
10. You have two cows. They live in Section I. They don’t show up to house meeting.
11. You have two cows. They live in Section II. They’re sick and don’t show up to house meeting.
12. You have two cows. They live in Section III. They have a conveniently-placed Doc Films poster and therefore don’t show up to house meeting.
13. You have two cows. They live in Section IV. They’re too busy fawning over David Guyton to come to house meeting.
14. You have two cows. They live in Section V. They spend all their time at the fountain drinking Section V water and don’t come to the house meeting.
15. You have two cows. They live in Snell. No Snellians notice.
16. You have two cows. You give them to Scav [Two live cows: 60 points each]. The judges know what team they’re from because each sports a fifteen-dollar ‘Snells like Hitchcock Spirit’ t-shirt.
17. You have two cows. They attend the panel discussion on Islam on Friday at four-thirty and broaden their horizons.
18. You have two cows. One goes to the OBS cultural show on Saturday. One is too busy dancing for twelve hours. Ironically, she does the foxtrot.
19. You have two cows. They watch “The Core” on Sunday night. You realize the cows know more about science than do the makers of the film.
20. You have two cows. They show up to watch a war movie on Monday. Griffin eats a steak sandwich.
21. You have two cows. They go to the A.O. concert at six o’clock on Tuesday. Calvin eats their souls. Ryan Rubin eats their bodies.
